“ Barry loved dogs more than anyone I have ever known. It was impossible from him to pass by a dog without taking time to rub its head, shake its paw, and have a heart-to-heart conversation with it. Barry had a quiet confidence about himself that put perfect strangers immediately at ease that would inevitably lead to a conversation as if they were long, lost friends. But nothing took more priority than his wife, Deb. Theirs was a love only dreamers can only dream of. Rest in peace, my friend.
