“ Like Sara, I had moved away from Lebanon, too, and still maintained my connection with Betty through occasional notes, phone calls, and visits. During the craziness of the pandemic, I tried to be in touch with her a few times and was concerned when I didn't get a response. Here it is months later and I finally know why, having received a kind letter from the person at the bank handling her estate explaining that Betty had passed away. She was a good friend and we enjoyed many lively chats about our various cats, goings on at the synagogue, and her long memories of Lebanon. I learned a lot from her and will miss our visits and chats, especially the ones when she had just baked her delicious sand tarts! Rest in peace, sweet lady.

“ Betty was my mother’s hairdresser and then mine, both before I went off to college and then on the morning of my first wedding, on August 22, 1968. Up until this past year Betty and I exchanged greetings at Rosh Hashanah. When I didn’t hear from her this fall, I feared that she wasn’t well. I am saddened now to learn of her death. I remember her as a kind and generous person, and I shall miss that connection with Lebanon that she was for me.
