“ I remember when I was a young child..had to be like 9-10 years old, I would always bother my uncle Joey lol. I would constantly prank him and we would burst out in laughs. Until the one time I put salt on his bald spot lol. He didn't think it was funny..but I did. And he told my grandmother/his mother on me. He would tell us so many interesting stories from his life, and we loved to sit and listen. We love you and you will be missed Uncle Joey

“ I remember the day I went to meet the family for the first time 8 years ago... Joey's big brother instinct kicked in, and with a serious stare down and among other questions he asks me “where do you work?” In other words he wanted someone who to care of his little sis.

“ I remember as a kid my brother Joey took me to Jones beach with a girlfriend he had named Emily. He would swim way out and then swim straight across the ocean. I would just sit on the beach and keep my eyes on him as he glided through the water so smoothly. He was a great swimmer.
