“ Marc & I met @ PSU Shenango Valley. We were foosball partners and the campus champions. We were roommates when we transferred to main campus. We remained friends after college. He was at my wedding, where pictures caught him RUNNING AWAY when I tossed the garter. My wife and kids stopped at his home the very day, after buying a doctor's Hot Wheels collection, when he began his online trading of collectables in earnest. I remember the day he called to say he was retiring from New Holland Ford. He said " he was making too much money from his hobby, and was losing money going to his day job"... Personal issues of mine led us to loose touch after 2002. I'd been trying to reconnect the last few years, but I couldn't find him...not even his RSHOCAR presence on eBay. I never thought I'd find him in Lancaster obituaries. I always thought with all my health issues that he'd be the one to read about me in the obits. I'm so saddened to learn of his passing. My condolences to his wife, JohnMichael Sabo
