“ Dear Marty:

You are still loved and missed. I will always love you. Wherever you are, I wish you love and peace and hope you are laughing and having a good time.

The auctions miss you too!

*Love,
Beverly*

“ Marty and I first crossed paths in the late Seventies at a time when each of us needed the support of the other. We had more than a few common experiences and shared many of the same values and ideas. Over the years we enjoyed many great times and shared a bunch of laughs. More importantly, we were there for each other when it really counted. While I will miss our occasional visits (nearly 900 miles separated us over the past decade), I will miss most acutely those long-winded, wide-ranging telephone discussions in which my old friend and I would seek to solve the thorniest problems facing Mankind! Hey, Mart - who do I call now?

Beverly:

In loving memory of a wonderful person. Lew and I appreciated his visits during Lew's illness and his willingness to drive Lew for his chemo treatments when I could not. He always had a smile and we felt blessed to have him as a neighbor. I am sure he and Lew are smiling down on us.

“ Marty, your light continues to shine. Namaste!

PS Beverly caught a mouse in the trunk of your car. She retrieved the little bugger and reset the trap! How bout that! Knew that would make you smile.

“ Marty was one of the most caring people I have encountered. He was one of those people that after he entered your life, he probably will never exit it, even if not always physically present. The kind of man that forgave and continued loving even when you didn't deserve it. Just looking at a picture of his warm smile brings a tear to my eye.
