“ My heart is broken for you all. I had the pleasure of having the "assigned" seat next to Miguel on the train on his way to Florida. "I was blessed...." I was busy between doing Sudoku number puzzles or reading the new cookbook I had just purchased in NYC... between the 2, a great conversation started.... I had the pleasure of hearing about his family that he loved so much and was so proud of... he talked of his sons, grandchildren and his wife... we shared family pictures. We talked of his trip to Florida and the work he was on his way to do, he would be away for a few months but then would be back to spend all his time with his family... I was excited for his work it sounded so interesting... What a blessing to meet such a great person.. I appreciated meeting him so much (as we joked of the smokers on the train, (getting in line at each stop to get out for that cig) or that couple of people drinking a little to much, or sitting next to that person with headphones but still can hear their music.... And I was lucky enough to meet and get acquainted with Miguel, such a gentleman.. I will always keep him and his family in my thoughts and prayers.
