“ We had such a blast after being turned away from the so called free concert. We laughed so hard but we wasn't trying to pay $20 for a rapper we didn't really rock with that much😂😂😂 so we ended up at the lounge and had more laughs. It was always god vibes and a good time when ever we went somewhere. My sister my friend you will forever be in my heart. I love you ❤️ Rest easy 🙏

“ To the family of Zulema and all of those who shared the love I have for her. I'm sorry for your loss. I'm sorry for this unexpected tragedy. She was like a sister to me growing up. We went through so much together in our lives. I wish I could let her know now what she meant to me all those years. Zulema, while she was serious to those she didn't know, she was someone who would take the shirt off her back for those she loved. We navigated our young lives together, it was an important part of our life that we shared, we were getting to know who we were and where we fit in this world. Like all teenagers we shared secrets, sooooo many laughs, soooo many tears, and then we would laugh at our tears. We brought the best out of eachother. She was a dedicated friend. Someone you could turn to in any given moment. Helped me get through my parents divorce and to find myself out of darkness. I will always love her for that. She was someone who loved hard. And Gave that love to people she deemed special to her, she took her feelings serious. Always knew what she wanted. Head strong. She was a fiery Scorpio. She let people know about themselves. She was my strength to get stronger. I remember us hanging out in the music room, buying our favorite singles and playing them on repeat driving my mom crazy. I remember us thinking we were Alliyah and teaching ourselves all the moves from four page letter. Listening to 112 cupid. I missed her over the years, we lost contact but I always thought of her. She was a beautiful soul then and will be a beautiful soul now. She will be missed. She will not be forgotten. And I will keep you all in my prayers.
